Cover disc: DVD

Stunning photography and fascinating recreations bring our primate past to life in our 100th issue DVD video, Walking With Cavemen. This exclusive first episode of the BBC's much-praised series traces the very earliest origins of man, starting four million years ago in Africa.

Sit back and watch as respected anthropologist Professor Robert Winston treads the path worn by our ape ancestors and find out how we evolved into the complex and extraordinary human beings we are today.

Actors bring the past to life by taking on the roles of our hairy forebears to recreate the tensions and dramas of prehistoric living. This film is a truly amazing step back in time that's educational, informative and entertaining in equal measure.

As well as the episode itself the DVD contains an interview with the producer and director, giving an insight into how this remarkable series was put together.

10 full programs and more!

Of course, readers with the DVD edition of the magazine get to enjoy all the goodies on our double-CD edition (listed opposite) too. And on top of that lot, there's two extra full programs and 10 playable games demos to get to grips with. Should be enough to keep you pretty busy until next month's issue hits the shelves. ☒
