

When the Image Integrator library is first opened, a text list of items in the library automatically appears. If the library is currently displaying thumbnails of the graphics in the library, select Text List from the Image Integrator palette's View menu. The text list display of the current library's items appears. The text list includes each item's name, its file type, the volume where the file is stored, and the folder which contains the file. If the volume containing the file is not currently mounted, or the file is not found, the folder name displays as "Error".
