Preview 1.5

Preview is a replacement printer driver which allows printed output to be viewed on the screen in miniature.

To use it, simply place it in your system folder. If you wish to use the FKEY provided, use the Resource Editor to install it into your system file (you can change the FKEY number, but don't change its name).

To select Preview, you can use the chooser, or press command-shift-6 if the FKEY is installed. The same process is used to switch back to your normal printer driver.

When Preview is selected simply select 'Print...' as you normally would. The printed output will be displayed in miniature, one page at a time. As each page is displayed, there are several options. Clicking inside the miniature view will result in a normal sized view of a section of the page. If the mouse is held down within the enlarged view, you can scroll around the page to look at different sections of it. Click again in the page view to return to the miniature view. The 'Next' button moves to the next page and the 'Cancel' button cancels printing, as you might guess.

This program is distributed as shareware. You are free to give it out to anyone, as long as Preview, this documentation file, and the FKEY are distributed together. If you find this program useful, we ask that you send $10.00 to COMPUTER:applications, Inc., using the form on the next page.

Remember, shareware depends on you, the end user, to work!
