ASK ROVER
THE RESEARCH HOUND

What's the fastest-flying bird in the world?

The spine-tailed swift is the world's fastest bird. With its long, slender wings, an adult can reach speeds of more than 100 miles per hour. And unless it's raining, swifts can fly all day!

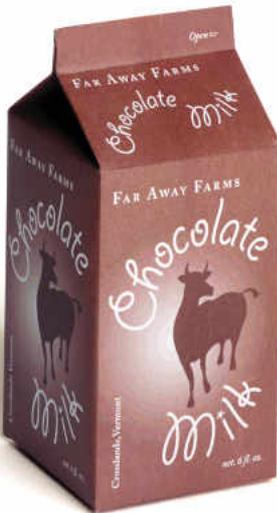

Homing pigeons, peregrine falcons and red-breasted mergansers also fly fast. They soar at speeds of more than 50 miles per hour. Most birds fly at speeds of about 20-30 miles per hour.

My friend caught a squirrel and kept it as a pet. Is that alright?

No. Wild animals should not be taken from their natural world. It's usually against the law to keep them as pets.

When you keep wild animals in captivity they often get sick and die. Even with the best care, most people just can't give wild animals what they need.

Add a unique look to anything you create with Adobe Wild Type.

RE: My vacation leave

M E M O:

As you all know, I am going on vacation for three weeks, as prescribed by my husband and family. I will not come into the office, nor will I be reachable by any communication yet devised by man. Or so says the vacation brochure. I will be thinking of you all as I sip cold beers on the deck and walk aimlessly along the moonlit beach.

In my absence, please refer all questions or problems to Patty Greenwood in sales and marketing. See you middle of next month.

Sincerely,
Judy
