You can also use the NeXT standard keyboard map to type the same characters. For more information about using the NeXT keyboard map, see your NeXT documentation.

Putting symbols in a document

You can type a symbol in a document, or copy it from the keyboard map above. To type a symbol, change to the Times or Helvetica font and type the key sequence. Four symbols are shown in each cell in the map. To type a symbol shown on the left of a cell, press the key with or without the Shift key. To type a symbol shown on the right of a cell, precede the key sequence with Control-q.

For more information, click the Next Page icon.

To copy a symbol from the keyboard map on the previous page, put the insertion point where you want the symbol to appear. Hold down the Alt key, and double-click the symbol you want to copy. For readability, some of the symbols are kerned.

To close this window, click the Close button at the right side of the title bar. If, for some reason, you are asked whether or not you want to save changes to Symbols.frame, click No.

FrameMaker standard characters keyboard map

You can also use the NeXT Symbol keyboard map to type the same characters (except for arrows). For more information about using the NeXT keyboard map, see your NeXT documentation.

Putting symbols in a document

You can type a symbol in a document, or copy it from the keyboard map above. To type a symbol, change to the Symbol font and type the key sequence indicated in the map. Four symbols are shown in each cell in the map. To type a symbol shown on the left of a cell, press the key with or without the Shift key. To type a symbol shown on the right of a cell, precede the key sequence with Control-q.

For more information, click the Next Page icon.

To copy a symbol from the keyboard map on the previous page, put the insertion point where you want the symbol to appear. Hold down the Alt key, and double-click the symbol you want to copy. For readability, some of the symbols are kerned in the map.

To close this window, click the Close button at the right side of the title bar. If, for some reason, you are asked whether or not you want to save changes to Symbols.frame, click No.

FrameMaker Symbol characters keyboard map

FrameMaker Symbol characters keyboard map (continued)