

This can easily be stated in terms compatible with our terminology as:

“Anergy (A) is a measure of units of effort. If in the process of bringing about an event, enough anergy is expended, the event becomes first possible, then probable, and finally certain.”