

(void)lock

Attempts to acquire a lock. This method blocks a thread's execution until the lock can be acquired.

An application protects a critical section of code by requiring a thread to acquire a lock before executing the code. Once the critical section is past, the thread relinquishes the lock by invoking unlock.

