Cheats:

Even though we LavaMinders are philosophically opposed to the concept of cheating, we have incorporated a few strategic cheat buttons into Zapitalism. We don't like the idea of simply allowing players to increase their cash to astronomical amounts with the press of a button, so don't expect this kind of cheating. Instead, we have added cheats that if used properly will give you an edge over your competitors. However, they are not so powerful as to completely warp the game-play.

The Quagmire Cheat:

While inside the Quagmire Insurance menu, you can press Ctrl-Q. This will randomly generate a new price. We recommend using this cheat if the original insurance price is high. In this case, there is a high probability that you will save some zables. However, if the price of insurance is already low, we don't recommend using this cheat button. It just may backfire on you.

The Travelers Cheat:

While inside the Travel Options menu, you can press Ctrl-T to randomly generate a new selection of travel times and costs. This may allow you to travel to a better location at a lower price. However, it's a gamble because by pressing Ctrl-T, you are committing yourself to a journey, and if you don't like the new travel times and costs, you're stuck.

The Construction Cheat:

While inside the Edifice Construction menu, you can press Ctrl-C. This will randomly generate a new construction cost. We recommend using this cheat if the original cost of construction is high. In this case, there is a high probability that you will save some zables. However, if the cost of construction is already low, we don't recommend using this cheat button. It just may backfire on you.

The Royal Cheat:

While inside the Royal Wholesaler menu, you can press Ctrl-B to buy a random product. You should only use this cheat if there is nothing else to buy and you want to try your luck at purchasing a completely random product. Sometimes this will pay off and other times you'll get stuck with worthless goods.
