Launching URL's from within IMG

There's a cool new feature in DOCMaker that allows you to launch web sites from within IMG if you have Netscape running in the background. Here's how it works. Before you run IMG, make sure you have Netscape already running. Whenever you see this button:

It means you can launch the url just by clicking on the green globe button. Remember, it only works if you have Netscape running in the background.

IMG Web Page Debuts

The Inside Mac Games Web Page is finally up and running. So far it's been a great success with thousands of hits each day. Check it out at the following url:
<<http://www.imgmagazine.com>
or if you already have Netscape running in the background, click on the icon below to launch it:

On the IMG web page you can order or renew subscriptions, take reader polls, download cool new demos, and keep up with the latest info on IMG, game companies, and more!

We'll be adding a lot more cool features to the web site soon!

The Macintosh Bible Guide to Games

The Macintosh Bible Guide to Games is the ll-in-one, bundled-in-a-book-with-a-cover -bright-enough-to-read-in-the-dark source for Mac gaming information. Written by veteran IMG contributors Bart Farkas and Christopher Breen, the MBGTG is more than just a few sparkly words wrapped around a terrific CD-ROM chock-full of games, patches, and cheaters (assembled by IMG Wizard-in-Chief, Tuncer Deniz. In addition to the cool CD, this Good Book contains no-holds-barred reviews of nearly every commercial Mac game on the market, interviews with the most happening cats in the Mac gaming business, quasi-scientific ratings of each game discussed, a prescient foreword by Nostradamus, and rants and raves where the authors lovingly lash out at each other.

The Macintosh Bible Guide to Games by Bart Farkas and Christopher Breen, is published by Peachpit Press. Available through IMG for only $35 (498 pages with CD-ROM!). Add $3 postage and handling, $6 outside the U.S.)
