

The paladins have been a constant threat to our power here in the temple. We send out forces to fight them, but they disappear into their hidden sanctuary. A magical force seems to protect their den and our efforts seem for naught. The elders continue to look for more magic items in hopes that they will swing the advantage to us.