

The following is a sample story which demonstrates the features of Professional Write's new grammar checker. The grammar checker that we are going to include in the new release of the product is Grammatik IV, from Reference Software.

The man who you met at the party is an old friend of Bill's. He is not too popular around here because the man and his dog, a German Shepherd, frightens the children. Though he has received many complaints, there is not never any doubt he will keep the dog. If I was to tell you that the man was very smart, you probably wouldn't believe me. While he certain is smart, he is also stubborn.

The neighbors have decided to sue him. There house is an old country estate. The reason they live in the country is because most urban areas are to densely populated. They want the man to keep the dog under control, and a lawyers have already delivered a subpoena to his house. It would be more better if he would agree to fence in his dog without a battle.

It turned out that they didn't have to sue. Someone stole the mans dog. He has asked for his dog back, and promised to keep him fenced. Even so, every one has refused to tell him where the dog is at. So ends the tail of the dog which frightens children.
