

Together The Rest of our lives

People always come into your life.
Leaving impacts as they go.
Some help you with your strife,
And others help you learn and grow.
People live in Corruption,
And some people will try to hurt you.
I my friend will offer protection,
And I will never desert you.
I've poured my heart out in my struggles,
In everything that I do.
I look at my placement and my troubles,
Yet I still want to do more for you.
I've been pushed down and tormented,
By the feelings I get in return.
I know for fact they're not intended
But for now in my heart they burn.
Sometimes your eyes seem gleaming,
Like you might understand my part...
That there's a special meaning
To our friendship that's deep within my heart.
In all the countries and all the Lands,
I find no other place to be,
Then to have my own hand in your hands,
Because they only comfort me.
My life right now is in a rattle,
Or a show that's on TV
I'm fighting in a hardcore battle,
And you're friendship has supported me.
The world is such a tiny place,
It dwells within the hearts of all,
In a hundred years this human race,
Will indeed learn how small we are.
But even in that hundred years,
If you and I survive,
I'll still fight all your fears,
And pray that we're together,
Everyday of the rest of our lives.

Joe Provenzano
Snapps901@aol.com
Want More? (too bad!)