

~~~~~

The EF E-mail Bag

~~~~~

At Expository Files we get a lot of "Dear Jon" mail, like the following:

Dear Jon:

What is Expository files? (ef2.7) Can I get to it on the internet through my service?

Thanks,
Joe

Answer --- to access EF from our Internet location, follow these instructions

Current and past issues of "Expository Files" are available via anonymous ftp from the following site:

Location: jackson.freenet.org
Directory: pub/markslis/ef
Filename: ef*.zip (ef9506.zip, ef9505.zip, etc.)

If you desire to access this file using the WWW, the proper URL is:

ftp://jackson.freenet.org/pub/markslis/ef/00index.html

=====

We were pleased to get this information from Hugh DeLong ...

From:

hugh@PrimeNet.Com (Hugh DeLong)
Sender:
markslist@jackson.freenet.org
Reply-to:
markslist@jackson.freenet.org
To:
markslist@jackson.freenet.org (Multiple recipients of list)
Hey 'Web surfers' - don't you just hate the expression!

You might want to check out Baker Book House's http - They advertise several books - including a new one on Christians and CyberSpace - they also have a resource page of 'Christian' sources on the net - including Mark's Christian Apologetics and Executable Outlines as well as Expository Files....

<http://www.bakerbooks.com/ccc/>

I also put up a home page on my local server - with links to Mark's home page and to Expository Files -- can be seen at <http://www.primenet.com/~hugh/> or

<http://www.azstarnet.com/~hugh/>

Don't know how much good we are doing - but since I am on the net decided the cost was free and the work was minimal - and I get to play with my computer ;-))

Hugh -

=====