

THE VIBREAKER

In a perfect world, all records would be free.

In a perfect world, all records would be good.

In a perfect world, consumers would never waste cash on pretentious clunkers of horrible songs that come highly-recommended from bow-tied rock critics from hell.

(Heck, in a perfect world, bow-tied rock critics would be blacklisted from the industry.)

Alas, the world isn't perfect, and the only people who do get records for free are bow-tied rock critics from hell. But LAUNCH is here to make the world a little closer to perfect with our Vibreaker. Now you can sample three songs from each album we review. You actually can kick out the jams before you clean out your wallet. The system is not flawless, of course, but we do have an informal policy against all bow ties, and our critics are published in such fab rock journals as Spin, Rolling Stone, the Village Voice and Billboard to name just a few. So hurry up and click out of this screen so you can check out our newest reviews--complete with tunes.

Nobody reads this stuff anyway.
