

A Time Warner Entertainment Company

RICHARD WALTZER

Vice President, HBO Pictures -- Home Box Office

Richard Waltzer was named vice president, HBO Pictures for Home Box Office in September 1988. Based in Los Angeles, he is responsible for developing and supervising production of HBO original movies. In 1991 he was also named vice president of HBO Worldwide Pictures, coordinating the company's activities with its subsidiary, Citadel Pictures.

In his current position, Waltzer has overseen the production of over 20 films including "And The Band Played On," starring Matthew Modine, "Citizen Cohn," starring James Wood, "Barbarians At The Gate," starring James Garner and "Attack of the 50ft Woman," starring Daryl Hannah.

Waltzer joined HBO in 1985 as a story analyst for HBO Pictures, and was promoted to director in 1986.

Prior to joining HBO, Waltzer worked with Peter Bogdanovich and Orson Welles.

Waltzer holds a B.A. degree in Cinema from the University of Southern California and was a directing intern at the American Film Institute.

He and his wife Kathryn reside in Pacific Palisades, California.

Picture File Name: E180

Text File Name: Floppy #2 Waltzer text