

INTRODUCTION

The collection of almanacs, given to the National Library of Medicine by William H. Helfand, consists of approximately 1700 issues, representing 200 titles, published for the years 1843-1985.

This guide consists of two parts. The first lists the almanacs by the titles under which they are shelved and shows the issue years held in the collection. These entries are in bold. In addition, it provides references from titles, personal, and corporate names under which the almanacs might be sought. The second part provides a locational listing.

The Library holds many patent medicine almanacs apart from this collection, which are catalogued and shelved separately. The fact that the Library owns additional issues of particular titles is indicated by an asterisk.
