Document Terminology

Please note that in the terminology of this editor, I make a differentiation between "stored documents" (or simply "documents") and "text files". A stored document is basically a HyperCard card, or the contents thereof. A text file is a Macintosh file external to the editor, that is, one resident as a text file on your hard disk. When you save from HTML.edit, you save a "stored document" to a "text file".

Generally speaking, your text files will be named with a suffix of ".html" (such as "Index.html") in order for them to be recognized as html files by your server.

Back to Tool Palette Menus, on to Why Don't My Links Work?, or return to Design Issues.