

Mode

This is the most frequently occurring data point and is only likely to be of interest with discrete data. If all the data points occur once only, then this will be reported, otherwise the most frequently occurring values will be displayed one after another separated by commas.

The mode can also be determined by plotting any one of the appropriate visual displays such as a frequency histogram.