- 1. Unregistered software : the unregistered software may be freely tried out for a time period not to exceed 30 days. Continued use past this period requires registration. The unregistered software may be freely copied and distributed. However, the distribution must be complete and with no modification. Holding the software for redistribution does not require registration.

SHAREWARE

Shareware is full commercial software that you can try out before you pay for it. It is distributed by shareware distributors such as BBS's (bulletin board systems), diskette or CD-ROM distributors, or by copies passed around among friends.

- Trying out the software allows you to determine whether it suits your needs and whether it runs correctly in your specific environment. At the end of the trial period, you should buy a license if the software suits your needs and if you decide to continue using it (see REGISTRATION hereafter).
- The software and its documentation are complete and no essential function is lacking. This should help you to make your registration decision with full knowledge of the facts.
- However, registration sometimes gives you additional functions and/or a bonus software (in addition to support and/or provision of new versions and/or a printed manual).

The benefit of the system is to stimulate the creation of software, giving the user a wide choice, opportunities to try out programs, affordable prices, and better support reactivity, due to a direct relation between the author and the user. A number of products are now available on the market. These products would never have been born without this type of distribution.

When registering the products you use and distributing them to people around you, you are promoting the creation of affordable-priced software, and, in this way, you are promoting yourself.

ASP

The "Association of Shareware Professionals" rallies shareware authors and distributors committed to following a certain number of guidelines, "directions for use" of the shareware. The action of the ASP contributes to educating authors, distributors, and users, and to improving the professional level of this activity.

ASP OMBUDSMAN

This software is produced by a member of the Association of Shareware Professionals (ASP). ASP wants to make sure that the shareware principle works for you. If you are unable to resolve a shareware-related problem with an ASP member by contacting the member directly, ASP may be able to help. The ASP Ombudsman can help you resolve a dispute or problem with an ASP member, but does not provide technical support for members' products. Please write to the ASP Ombudsman at 545 Grover Road, Muskegon, MI 49442-9427 USA, FAX 616-788-2765 or send a CompuServe message via CompuServe Mail to ASP Ombudsman 70007,3536.
