

Everything I Really Need to Know
I Should Have Learned in Sunday School

Copyright (c) 1993 James W. King
All Rights Reserved
After Robert Fulghum

All of the things I really need to know about how to live, what to do and how to behave I should have learned in Sunday School. Wisdom was not to be found in listening to other people but in listening to my Lord. These are the things I heard Him say:

Share all you have with the poor and follow Him.
Play fair but when others don't strike back.
Don't hurt people with fists or words.
If someone hurts you forgive them then tell them you love them.
Things are unimportant.
Life is not always as it seems, look for truth not pleasure or money.
Don't steal and don't kill aren't the greatest commands,
Love God and everyone else are the greatest commands.
Treat others the way you want them to treat you, The Golden Rule.
Love others more than you love yourself.
Don't be anxious about anything.
Get close to God and He will get close to you.
The best way to say you are sorry is not to hurt anyone in the first place.
If you choose to do wrong you will be punished, even if only by yourself.
Cleanliness is not next to godliness, God-likeness is.
Rest on Sunday and keep the Lord's Day holy.
People don't only need food to live, people also need the Lord every day.
Balance in life means a mix of spiritual, mental, emotional and physical.
When you go out into the world be aware of things you cannot see, but never fear, He is with you even to the end of the earth.
Also be aware of the awe and wonder of the Lord. As the Prince of Wonder
He has untold riches waiting for us and His ways are beyond man's understanding.

---

Everything I Really Need to Know I Should Have Learned in Sunday School
Copyright (c) 1993 James W. King
All Rights Reserved
After Robert Fulghum