Stereogram Animator 1.0

Intro to Stereogram Animator

Stereogram Animator is a program that animates a series of random dot stereogram images to give the illusion that a picture is moving in and out of your monitor.

To see the animation, you must first be able to properly view a stereogram. Use the method below to see the initial picture.
(NOTE:The 3D picture that should be seen is a square. Also, when attempting to see the 3D image, the viewer should be be no more than 8 to 16 inches away from the screen.)

Viewing Method:
Relax your eyes, bring them out of focus, them slowly bring them into focus. What you are attempting to do, is focus your eyes a foot or two behind the picture. Don't worry, if you don't see the image right away because it takes time and practice. Some individuals will see the 3D image much quicker than others.

Another way to practice the technique to help you see the image is the following:
1)Hold your thumbs straight in the air while curling your fingers inward.
2)Turn your thumbs inward so that that are now facing each other.
3)Touch the tips of your thumbs to one another.
4)Hold your thumbs 8 to 16 inches away from your face.
5)Look at your thumbs while actually looking beyond your thumbs. You are attempting to view your thumbs while focusing your vision approximately two feet beyond your thumbs.
If steps 1 through 5 were done correctly, the viewer should then see the illusion of a third thumb "floating"(or being held) between his or her two real thumbs. The viewer should now use this new focusing skill upon the stereogram.

After you can see the 3D square, hit start and the square will appear to move in and out of the screen. The effect is not stunning, but it is pretty cool.

Setting Up Stereogram Animator

It's fairly simple. To change current settings, hit the config button. If the images are being animated to fast, then change the speed setting. Note: you can change this setting while the images are being animated. Also, if you want Stereogram Animator to always be the top window in your environment, then check the "always on top" checkbox.
