What Does Disconnecter Do?

Disconnecter was created for one purpose - to save you money. How many programs do that?

How it works?

You probably often want to start downloading some files from the Internet, and then leave the computer. You don't do that because you're afraid to see your phone-and ISP-bill at the end of the month. So, in case you want to download a huge file, or several files, you would have to download only what you can in the time you're surfing.

So we've come with Disconnecter's idea: You can start downloading a file or several files, activate Disconnecter, and it'll watch the download process. When all the downloads are done - Disconnecter will automatically disconnect you, therefore you'll save money.

Can I Run Disconnect On My Computer?

This version of the program is a 32-bit version, that is, you should have Windows 95 or Windows NT 4.0 (You can see the help file, so you probably have one of those systems).

The program is based on the dial-up architecture of Windows. We tested the program on the standard dial-up connection provided, and it should work on standard dial-up connections established by third-party software (like FlashSite). But if you do use third-party programs to dial, you MUST check to see if Disconnect works correctly with your program.

Also, the program depends on a separate window used to download files. NCSA Mosaic or Internet Explorer 2, for example, doesn't have such a window and it views download progress in its main window. Netscape Navigator versions 2 and up, and Internet Explorer versions 3 and up, do have such a window.

Choosing Your Browser

Choose your browser from the list in the box names "Browser":

Browser:

If your browser is not in the list, choose Other...

Setting Download Window Caption And 'Download Complete' Caption Name

|-----------------------------|--|
| Download-window caption | <input type="text" value="File Download*"/> |
| 'Download Complete' Caption | <input type="text" value="Download Complete"/> |

Disconnecter needs to know what is the caption of the window that shows the download progress and the name of the dial-up connection.

The download window caption field is filled automatically when you choose your browser from the list, unless you don't have Netscape Navigator or Internet Explorer. In that case, you should type the download window caption manually.

Download some file from the Internet, and watch the caption of the window that shows you the progress of the download. Then type it in the box.

IMPORTANT NOTE

Some browsers, like Netscape Navigator, change the caption of the window used to download, if it's minimized. When you see it on the screen, the caption is, say, Saving Location, and if you minimize the window, you'll also see the progress of the download in percents, like: Saving Location - [12%] .

Disconnecter, in release 1.2 , supports wild-cards in the download window caption field. That is, you can write Saving Location (Note the asterisk in the end of the text). This means, that Disconnecter will search for any window, which its caption starts with the phrase "Saving Location", no matter what comes after that. You can use * (asterisk) and ? (Question mark) exactly as you use in DOS.

In the same way, you can set appropriate Download Window Caption field to other programs you have. If you use, for example, GetRight, the caption reads while downloading something like: 198k of SCREEN.ZIP – GetRight. In that case, you can set the Download Window Caption field to:

SCREEN.ZIP --

This will ensure that when the downloading process of this file ends, Disconnecter will detect it. Be aware that, if you want more global captioning, like if you have several windows that handle downloads, you should fill the Download Window Caption field with something common to all these windows, and ONLY to these windows.

Setting 'Download Complete' Caption

If your version of Internet Explorer is not English, you should type here the caption of the window which notifies you when the download is complete. In the English version, the caption is Download Complete. Check what it is in your computer and type it exactly.

First-time running of Disconnecter

Setting a time to operate automatically

In some cases, there is a jam in the Internet routing. What happens is that a download session is stuck in the middle, although the download window isn't closed. What happens is that instead of disconnecting, because a stuck download is useless, the connection remains, and your phone company and the ISP keep charging you.

Another situation is that you start a download process, but the file (or files, for several downloads) is too big, and the download continues when in a time that the connection is more expensive.

The solution to this situations is the Auto-Operate feature. Check the box "Operate automatically at" , and set the time you want Disconnect to disconnect you, and/or play a sound, even if the downloads are not finished.

First-time running of Disconnect

Because of the different browsers available, It is highly recommended that you test the program “on dry”.

How to do that?

- 1 Surf the Internet in your free time. Just when you want to disconnect, do the following:
 - Start Disconnect and activate the watcher.
 - Download some small file (up to 20-30 KB) from the Internet.
- 2 Sit and watch. When the file download process ends, Disconnect should disconnect you automatically (and/or play a sound, depending on your selection).

If it doesn't - check to see if all window captions are exactly right, and repeat the process.

If it still doesn't work, and you use Netscape Navigator version 2 and up, or Internet Explorer version 3 and up, write us an e-mail.

Disconnect

Disconnect from the Internet

Check this box if you want the program to disconnect you from the net after all downloads are done (There is no reason to leave this box unchecked).

Play Sound

Check this box if you want a sound to be played when all downloads are done.
Choose a sound from the list. If you want to hear the sounds in the list, double-click one, or select one by clicking it with the left mouse button, press the right mouse button and choose Test from the menu.

Ticking

While working, tick
every minutes

Check this box if you want to hear 'little ticks' every given time, during the operation.
Write in the appropriate box the interval in minutes.
You can press the button in the right to hear the ticks.

Activating

To Activate Disconnecter, press the button Activate. When activated, the window disappear and an icon of it will appear in the system tray (near the time display).

The program will then watch the download/s process/es. If all downloads are done - you'll be notified as you configured the program - the dial-up connection will be terminated and/or a sound effect will be heard. If you want to cancel Disconnecter's operation, you can simply double-click Disconnecter's icon on the system-tray at any time.

A list of the most popular browsers. Click Other... if you have a browser that's not in the list.

This field indicates the caption of the window that displays the download process. It automatically gets the appropriate values for Netscape and Internet Explorer. If you have other browser – select ‘Other’ from the ‘Browser’ field, and type it manually (download a file and notice what’s the caption).

Pay careful attention to write exactly the same characters, or use wildcards. For more information, refer to the help file.

Specifies the caption of the window that notifies you when a download session is complete. Change it from the default value ('Download Complete'), if you have a version of Internet Explorer other than the English version.

Check the box if you want a sound to be played when all downloads are done.
Choose a sound from the list. If you want to hear the sounds in the list, double-click one, or select one by clicking it with the left mouse button, press the right mouse button and choose Test from the menu.

Check this box if you want the program to disconnect you from the net after all downloads are done.

Activates Disconnecter. When activated, the window will be minimized and the program will watch the download/s process/es. If all downloads are done - you'll be notified as you configured the program. You can simply press Disconnecter's button on the task-bar at any time to cancel the watch.

Ends Disconnect.

Set the time you want to force Disconnect to operate (disconnect / play sound), even if the downloads are not finished.
