

06 March 1994

Texas Hero™ looks like handwriting from about 150 years or so ago — complete with upper-case flourishes and a little hand-done unevenness overall. Not too fancy, and not too plain. Use for drop caps or to suggest an old-document-style script. Modeled after the handwritten letters of Thomas Jefferson Rusk and other Texas heroes. Works well with page-layout, illustration software, etc. PostScript Type 1 version (TrueType also available). Install as usual.

This shareware offering has a single weight with upper and lower cases, numerals, punctuation, and some diacriticals. Users who pay the $10 shareware fee will receive a copy of Texas Hero™ with a much-expanded character set — in fact, more than 40 extra alternate characters, ligatures, and common words. I'll also send along a trial font or two and news of any additional utilities or other products I might by then have available.

If you choose to keep Texas Hero™, please send a check for $10 to:

Three Islands Press
215 Cedar Street
Rockland, ME 04841-2307

IMPORTANT: When you register, please be sure to note what version and format you'll be using — Windows TrueType, Mac Type 1, etc. Otherwise you might get the wrong disk in the mail. Please also take a moment to mention where you found Texas Hero™ and feel free to note comments, criticisms, bugs, suggestions, and/or other characters you'd like to see. You're welcome to pass Texas Hero™ along, but please pass along this document, too. Many thanks.

Brian Willson
76662,2364@compuserve.com