

File Path Popup Menu

A file path popup menu is a popup menu whose menu items are a file or folder and its parent folders, such as the popup menu above the list in a file directory dialog. In File Buddy, such a menu is available for file list items and get info items.

For file list items, click the item with the option key down. For an item in a Get Info window, click in the area where the path appears (The "Where:" area). In either case, the popup menu that appears lists the item itself as the first menu item, its parent folder as the second menu item, etc., down to the volume on which it resides as the last menu item. Selecting an item from the menu takes you to that item, which lets you go to the target or any of its parent folders. This is the same as the popup menu you get in a finder window when you Command-click in the title.
