DOctor

convert .doc's into .pdf

by Stone Design www.stone.com

Why?

If people email you a WORD document (.doc or .DOC) and you don't have Microsoft "Word", it's a pain.

What?

DOctor translates these files into PostScript - and, if you have Stone Design's PStill™ distillery installed (it's one of 7 apps in the Stone Studio™), automatically converts it further into Mac OS X friendly PDF.

And then?

If you have Stone Design's Create® design and web authoring package installed, DOctor opens the PDF in Create®, otherwise you'll see it in your favorite PDF viewer, settable in Finder's Show Info when a PDF file is selected.

What about Experts?

You'll see a round jewel on the conversion window -that's the "Open drawer" button which exposes two options: page orientation (Portrait or Landscape) and page size (letter, legal, executive, tabloid, folio, note, quarto, statement, a3, a4, a5, b4, b5 and 10 by 14). Set these before you drag on a WORD .doc.

Since you read this far, here are the details: DOctor has inside of it "antiword" - a UNIX executable. True to the GPL spirit, the source to antiword is also included for you! See DOctor->antiword Source... Source for DOctor is available at <http://www.stone.com/DOctor/>
