

Burpee Home Gardens wants 2011 "I Can Grow" youth garden awards program

Burpee's "I Can Grow" youth gardening program is expanding and accepting applications for the 2011 program. It's intended for school and community gardens.

Those selected will be awarded up to 500 vegetables and herb plants and $2,500 in garden supplies. They also receive assistance from Burpee experts, five gallons of Daniels Plant food and a Flip camera to document the garden's progress and success.

Applications are due by Dec. 3. Download an application at www.burpeehomegardens.com.

Posted by Kathy Van Mullekom on Wednesday, November 10, 2010 at 02:59 PM Permalink | Comments \(0\) | Linking Blogs

