

University of Delaware student to compete in Dairy Research Institute product contest

By Megan Mattingly-Arthur

Correspondent

Posted Mar 20, 2012 @ 12:08 PM

Newark — Rebecca Sheahan, a University of Delaware junior from Dover, will represent the university's UDairy Creamery in a Dairy Research Institute competition to develop an innovative new dairy beverage.

As a top-six finalist, the UDairy Creamery team must submit a 10-page product report and product samples to the Dairy Research Institute. The team will present its product to a panel of judges via a webinar May 30.

The top three teams in the competition will be recognized at the American Dairy Science Association's annual meeting, to be held July 15 to July 19, in Phoenix, Ariz.

Click here for online version.

For internal use only. Reprints available for purchase.