PORTLAND, Ore.--(BUSINESS WIRE)-- Standard Insurance Company and The Standard Life Insurance Company of New York (“The Standard”), today announced at the WorldatWork Total Rewards 2011 Conference & Exhibition in San Diego the opening of its remodeled Workplace Possibilities<sup>SM</sup> Centers and the launch of a virtual tour of the spaces. The centers simulate different industry-specific settings with examples of custom ergonomic accommodations that can help employers re-imagine their workplaces, keeping employees at work and productive. The Workplace Possibilities Centers are located at The Standard offices in Portland, Ore., and White Plains, N.Y. The virtual tour is available on the Workplace Possibilities blog at www.workplacepossibilities.com, and is on display at The Standard’s Booth #739 at Total Rewards.

“The Workplace Possibilities Centers give people a firsthand look at what an ergonomically correct workplace looks like,” said Alison Daily, director of Workplace Possibilities. “What’s helpful about the centers — both on-site and online — is that they allow employers to visualize several innovative accommodations for employees that can remove barriers to productivity, keep them on the job and reduce the risk of leave.”

The Workplace Possibilities Center in Portland features four workspaces representing different types of work environments: office/call center, industrial, hospital and classroom. Visitors will gain exposure to different products, such as an ergonomic computer mouse or a mechanical lift, and learn how important these tools can be to employees’ physical and mental health. Several of these kinds of products will be on display at the Total Rewards booth, including an adjustable desk, adjustable monitor arm and noise-canceling machine.

“When repetitive motion injuries such as carpal tunnel syndrome and back strains are some of the leading workplace injuries in the country, it’s crucial to learn how to prevent them,” said Daily. “The Workplace Possibilities Centers not only show different products that can help, but also give a depth of understanding in why and how to use them.”

The Standard’s Workplace Possibilities team leverages its relationships with leading ergonomic product developers to obtain better pricing and enable faster delivery to businesses. According to Daily, this allows best practices to be shared in one place, giving The Standard’s customers better service.
