Space Hulk: Vengeance of the Blood Angels

Electronics Arts announced the release of "Space Hulk: Vengeance of the Blood Angels" for the 3DO Interactive Multiplayer in July. This is a new version of "Space Hulk", based on the classic PC, PC-CD, and Amiga versions that were previously re-released in 1993.

A derelict Space Hulk is racing towards the Imperial Planet Delvar III. You, as the leader of the Blood Angels Chapter of Imperial Space Marines, must board this gargantuan Hulk and somehow divert it from its course. As the leader, you must also battle through the depths of the decaying Hulk to find and shut down its engines. The only drawback to this, however, is that the Hulk is crawling with enemies, and obstacles which the player must skillfully navigate around. It will be available by August, with an SRP of $59.95.

Trip'd

Panasonic Software Company (PSW) has announced the release of the first ever falling tile game for the 3DO platform. "Trip'd" is an exciting action puzzle game suitable for the entire family. Trip'd basically features you in a race to destroy alien eggs as they fall to the earth. In order to do this, you must arrange four or more in a group, but if the group is a square, the eggs band together and form a super alien. The title was created by WARP Inc. of Japan and will be made available in July, at a suggested retail price of $49.95.

Ballzš, The Director's Cut.

Panasonic Software has announced the release of a new version of their classic fighting game "Ballzš, The Director's Cut." This is the first truly 3-D fighting game for the 3DO system. Based on the critically acclaimed game previously available for other platforms, The Director's Cut features three times more moves than the standard 2-D fighting game. There are plenty of hilarious special attacks, groveling, and even body slams. In addition, Morph Power has been created to add challenge and strategy to the game. One character can morph into another at any time. Ballz will be available for the 3DO format in September, at a suggested retail price of $59.95.

Strahl

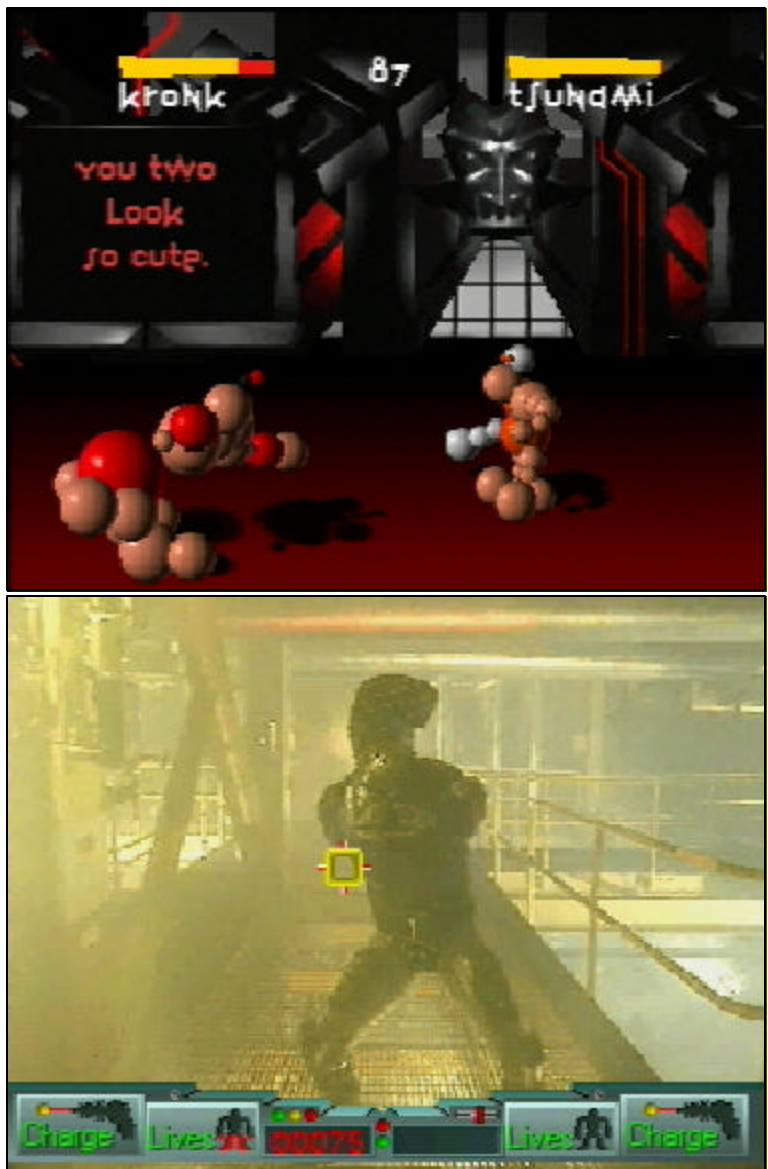

Panasonic Software Company has announced the release of Strahl, a Japanese animated adventure game for the 3DO platform. This real-time interactive drama has the player helping the young Alex Hawkfield to heed his destiny and become the king of a mythical land. Alex is moved to his fate by a mysterious old man. He must overcome unique challenges in order to recover the seven crystal gems that will help him. Can he slay the dragon, destroy the evil golem and still save the kingdom? The title features a hi-fi musical score and 48 possible endings. Strahl will be available in July at an SRP of $59.95.

Space Pirates

This latest 3DO title from American Laser Games has players blasting their way through alien worlds and saving hostage space colonists. Led by the evil Captain Talon, these planet-hopping pirates have taken these innocent colonists to a space ship. The player takes on the role of a Star Ranger who is given the assignment of saving the colonists and collecting energy crystals from three different worlds. These crystals power the star-splitter cannon which is the only weapon that can destroy the pirate ship Black Dragon. Victory comes when the cannon is charged, the pirate ship is destroyed and the player has a final confrontation with Captain Talon. Space Pirates was set to be in stores by the end of June with an SRP of $59.95. The game is compatible with ALG's GAMEGUN.

GAMEGUN for Two Players

American Laser Games has also announced that a two player version of the GAMEGUN will be available in August. This will enable two people to compete simultaneously against each other within the same game. This feature will work with the games Mad Dog II: the Lost Goldš, Crime Patrolš and Space Piratesš as wells as the future ALG games Drug Warsš (July), The Last Bounty Hunterš (September) and Shoot Out at Old Tucsonš (October). The SRP on the two-player GAMEGUN will be $59.95.

Ballz (top) presents a new level to fighting games with its highly rendered characters. Space Pirates (bottom) forces you to fight your way through a galley of bad news villains.

Panzar General

Mindscape has release their new strategy/adventure game "Panzar General." The year is 1939, and you are a German General with a new command in Poland. You must use your gift of leadership and knowledge to turn your inexperienced units into powerful forces that will take over Norway, Belgium, France, North Africa and the Eastern Front. In addition to this, you have the option of playing over 35 progressive scenarios as the Allied or the Axis side. You have your choice of over 350 unit types, and anything can happen.
