1.2 Introduction to this guide

Introduction

This guide has been started up for all users of IRC. It's really just a list of channels and jargon which could act as a reference guide for the times when you decide to go onto IRC.

It began as a text file, with just a simple list of channels. Now, it has grown into a Guide as well, with plenty more channels to keep you interested. We intend to keep on improving the files until no more channels or jargon can be found. Or as long as the Internet exists. :)

Take a look around and see what there is of interest to you. We welcome any comments that you may have about the lists. Send them to the addresses given in the section.

Thanks for your time. Enjoy!

1.3 Some things you should be aware of

PC USERS ALERT! (If any)

This archive contains two versions of the IRC list, the 'IRC.guide' which is only for Amiga computers who have Amigaguide@ installed. If you are a PC IRC user and did manage to stumble across this little gem, there is also a TXT file which you can view. It's virtually the same, except it's smaller and less efficient. If you want the best, upgrade to an Amiga! :)

No descriptions! :(

Unfortunately, quite a lot of the channels do not have descriptions on them. We'll be using them over the next few months and sorting out what each channel is. If you do send channels, it would be helpful if you could just send a small description on what the channel entails. Thanks!

1.4 How to use this guide

How?

It's easy really, just select
The List

and choose a letter relevant to the channel that you may be interested in. From then on, you will be displayed with a list containing all the channels starting with the letter you chose. Just browse around and see what you can find. :) Also, take a look at the description of the channel to see what it's about.

If you don't want a channel to go to but just require some information on IRC terms, then look up the area for information on terms which you may come across when perusing the vast area that is IRC.

Also, you may peruse the small collection of smilies

that we have in stock,

just in case you get bored at all! :)

1.34 Contributors to this guide

People who have contributed in some way

A big thanks must go to Florent Monteilhet who is the only one (So far!) who has bothered to contact us and send us some stuff. He/she sent us loads of ↔ channels, some of which were a little bit dubious. We've had to leave out the dirtier ones ↔ due to some people (On BBS's mainly) complaining about it. Most of it was left in. Thanks Florent!

That's all for now. :(Keep sending!

1.35 Contacting me

If you want me for any reason...

If you want to send us any channels or jargon, or just want to make comments on the files then you can e-mail us at this address :

Cool96@jinxster.demon.co.uk

Or this Snail Mail address :

Chris Seward
10 Scafell Close
Eastham
Wirral
Merseyside
L62 9EU

England

If you sent a letter from a foreign country, it would be nice if you could include some return postage. :) Thanx.

1.36 Some extra things....

The great Cool96 channel

If you want to find me, I'm usually on my own wonderous channel, '#Cool96' which is free for all kids. Sometimes, however, it will be Invite Only as I often have a private chat so message me if you desperately need to talk. :)

I'll also be on '#Pei' and '#Kidz' (With a 'Z')

Who is LumberJak?

Well, he's Cool's brother whom at the moment is in the process of writing his masterpiece. It's an AMOS game (Without a title) and is based around the age old theme of 3D Role play games. :) It will have monsters, multiple characters, parties, great graphics, sounds etc. All the usual stuff, and more.

If you are interested in such a game, or just want to query me about my AMOS ← habits

then mail me at the following address :

swards@jinxster.demon.co.uk

I usually contribute to the AMOS mailing list, so you might be able to find my comments on there.

BTW, If you are a great graphics designer, and would be interested in drawing graphics for my masterpiece, then contact me at the above address. This isn't exactly going to be a major project, but it may make a few bob, of which some will go to the graphics designer. (If there is one) :)

Thanks for listening.....
