

Version History

3.0

June 28, 1999

- switched to www.wunderground.com weather server
- added support for over 7000 new cities
- all cities now support complete conditions and forecast
- changed to HTTP proxy instead of SOCKS proxy

2.3.3

May 12, 1999

- WeatherTracker ownership transferred to Trexar Technologies, Inc.
- recompiled with the latest development resources

2.3

February 15, 1998

- Completely rewritten in C++
- SOCKS firewall proxy support added
- AppleScript support
- Added time stamp to status window entries
- Inactive cities will automatically get data when data window is visible

- Data logs no longer create new files each day
- Daily min/max values are saved on quitting
- Automated bug reporting when parsing fails
- Added 150 new cities

2.2

July 4, 1996

- All users can access rainmaker.wunderground.com, but only registered users can change the list of cities to view.

2.1

March 25, 1996

- Rewritten for PowerPlant
- Newly styled windows
- Support for multiple cities
- Logging of data to files
- Daily min/max for thermometer and barometer
- Wind chill, heat index, and dewpoint

- Time stamp supports Date & Time control panel settings

2.0

July 24, 1994

- Added support for hPa and km/h
- Added support for tons of new cities in the US and abroad
- Added support for near-short marine forecasts in the US
- Added support for climatic data in the US
- Added nighttime icons
- Added support for saving and printing forecasts
- Added Recent menu to switch between cities easily
- Added Default button for preferences
- Added support for firewalls (still buggy)
- Added units to wind speed display
- Redrew displays to make them look a little better
- Numerous minor bug fixes

1.0 February 27, 1994

-

First public release