

excerpt from

Mother Earth: Her Whales

The robots argue how to parcel out our Mother Earth
To last a little longer like vultures flapping Belching, gurgling, near a dying Doe.

“In yonder field a slain knight lies—We’ll fly to him and eat his eyes with a down derry derry derry down down.”

An Owl winks in the shadow A lizard lifts on tiptoe breathing hard
The whales turn and glisten plunge and Sound, and rise again Flowing like breathing planets

In the sparkling whorls

Of living light.

40072, Stockholm: Summer Solstice

-- Gary Snyder, Turtle Island

---

Return to Welcome to HTML.edit.