

Sheet1

WORD,C,16

subtitle

submarine

predict

subordinate

submission

supervise

morale

superscript

prevail

league

presume

subway

superfluous

preview

submit

subsidize

subsist

exhorted

retributive

redundant

Sheet1

DEFINITION,C,250

a secondary or explanatory title; a printed statement or bit of dialogue appearing on the screen between the scenes of a silent film a naval vessel designed to operate underwater to declare in advance: foretell on the basis of observation, experience, or reasoning placed in or occupying a lower class or rank; yielding to or controlled by authority condition of being humble or obedient; act of yielding to the power of another superintend, oversee the mental and emotional condition of a person or group with regard to a task or goal that is to be accomplished a symbol written immediately above or above and to the side of another character to win against opposition, be successful; to urge successfully an association or alliance of nations; an association of persons or groups united for common interests or goals to undertake without permission or good reason; to expect or assume with confidence; to suppose to be true without proof an underground passage; a usually electric underground railway going beyond what is enough or necessary a showing of something before regular showings to present to another for review or decision; to give in to the authority, control, or choice of another to aid or furnish with a grant or gift especially of money, especially, a grant by a government to a private person or company to have or continue to have existence; to have or get the necessities of life, especially, to nourish oneself tried to influence by words or advice: urged strongly of, relating to, or marked by demanding something given in payment for a wrong more than what is necessary or normal; using or having more words than necessary

Sheet1

SENTENCE,C,80

The @ of his biography was "The Story of an Old Man's Youth."

When a @ sunk the battleship Lusitania, the U.S. entered the world war.

It was impossible to @ the outcome at such an early stage.

The overbearing boss was often cruel to his @ employees.

The Allies demanded the @ of the Axis forces.

The manager came over to @ the unloading of the new supplies.

The @ of the troops was low, which made it difficult for them to fight.

The @ to the right of the number tells us how often to multiply it by itself.

The American entry into the war helped the Allied powers @ over the Axis.

The president's idea of a @ of nations was an attempt to avoid another war.

The jury is required to @ that a person is innocent until proven guilty.

The tunnels of the @ crisscrossed underneath the city of London.

There was a lot of @ material in the report that needed to be cut out.

The joke was just a @ of how funny the whole play would be.

The police demanded that the robbers @ themselves to arrest.

The government will @ farmers if their harvest is not good.

The settlers were so poor, they hardly had enough food on which to @.

Wilson @ the people of the world to work together for a lasting peace.

The @ fines placed upon Germany were meant to compensate those hurt in the war.

The boring speaker's talk contained many @ passages.