

The rear-panel VGA connector uses motherboard DRAM to support video. This is the PC standard connector with three rows of pins, rather than the Apple standard DB-15 with two rows of pins.