

A script showing how it is possible to have multiple event handlers. Load input1 first with `"/load input1"` and then `"/load input2"`. You will see both input handlers being called in the order they were loaded. The processing of an event stops when the first handler returns true, meaning that the event was completely processed.