A script to filter out file offerings in the format used in some channels, and display them in a separate window. It matches the incoming text with a pattern and redirects to a custom window. In Snak such windows are called "Filters". The matching in this script could be done much more effectively using the match event, but is left as is to illustrate how few modifications are necessary to use existing scripts.