Brushstroke is a paint brush typeface useful for headlines and flyers. It is not hobbled and has a full set of upper and lowercase characters as well as numbers and several special characters, such a copyright, registration, trade mark, and sterling. Not all grave, circumflex, ringlet, and acute characters are enabled, though many are.

This typeface is freeware. It may not be included in any commercial font packages of any sort. It may not be distributed commercially or resold in any way. It may be freely distributed and uploaded anywhere and everywhere, so long as this brief notice is included.

As with many complex typefaces of this sort, display under ATM with the type 1 outlines may include stroked trash; that is, lines jumping across the middle of the characters, particularly at lower type sizes or degrees of magnification. This, however, is just a display quirk of ATM, and will not affect postscript output quality. Also, this is not a problem with the TrueType version.

Finally, please download and use frequently. Keep Freeware alive!
