Mailing your card via e-mail is very easy. All you have to do is to attach your card to an e-mail message and then send your message.

Following the generation of your card ready for mailing, a file called CARD.EXE is created and stored in a directory called MAIL under the main directory where you installed FunE-Cards. For example, if you installed FunE-Cards to the default directory, then your card is located in the following directory: C:\Program Files\Fecards\Xmas1\Mail

If you are using Windows 3.1, your card will be located in the C:\Fecards\Xmas1\Mail directory.

To mail your card, create a new message with your e-mail software and then attach CARD.EXE to that message using the attachment facilities of your e-mail software. When you send your message, your card will also be sent.

Generating Your Card Ready For Mailing

Prior to mailing, your card needs to be generated and made ready for mailing.

Generating your card ready for mailing is the final stage in the design process. Pressing the "Generate" button from the toolbar or from the final dialog screen when using the card wizard will generate your card ready for mailing. This generation process converts the card you have created including all the audio and video clips in to a single file called CARD.EXE.

Once this generation process is complete, you can then mail your card. To mail your card, create a new message with your e-mail system and then attach CARD.EXE to that message. When you send your message, your card will also be sent.

CARD.EXE is located and stored in a directory called MAIL under the main directory where you installed FunE-Cards. For example, if you installed FunE-Cards to the default directory, then your card is located in the following directory:

Windows 95 & NT	C:\Program Files\Fecards\Xmas1\Mail
Windows 3.1	C:\Fecards\Xmas1\Mail
