

n this chapter I'll show you some small tidbits of html that will probably want to include on your web page.

- If you want to have a link that when a user clicks on it, a window is brought up for them to e-mail you, use this line of code:
Just add in your e-mail address in place of the black text.

Send e-mail to `webmaster@extreme-mac.com`

This will look like this:

Send e-mail to webmaster@extreme-mac.com

- If you wish to add a comment into your html code, so that when people view the code, they will see the text, but it won't show up on your web page use this:

`<!--This web page and html code was made by Joel Mueller-->`

(It doesn't matter how many '-----' dashes you have)

- To add many special characters that usually wouldn't be viewable if you just typed them in normal use these codes below:

Special Characters -

`< = &lt;`

`> = &gt;`

`& = &amp;`

`" = &quot;`

Trademark ™ = `&#174;`

Copyright © = `&#169;`
