

Publish Your Material on Nautilus

Nautilus is a CD ROM-based multimedia information service in a magazine format. Like online information services, Nautilus is a shell (hence the name), dependent to a large degree on subscriber-supplied content. Nautilus provides the opportunity for YOU to contribute, to exchange and share ideas and software with others; it's your opportunity to publish your materials.

The Nautilus Team's goal is to provide the personal computer community with a channel to publish and distribute large amounts of data in a timely and cost-effective manner. We want to ensure that Nautilus is responsive to the needs and visions of the individual user and the CD ROM community at large.

Nautilus' success is dependent upon information from and about the PC community. We welcome your contributions of the following items:

- Applications
- Demonstrations
- Multimedia presentations
- ToolBook™ projects
- Digitized photos
- Clip art
- Digitized sounds
- MIDI music files
- MediaBlitz!™ scores
- AVI file format video clips

If you have other suggestions for which the multimedia capabilities, timely distribution and massive storage capacity of Nautilus seem appropriate, let us know.

[OPTIONAL: With your submissions we'd like a color picture of you (a 35mm slide, if possible) and an "About the Author" description in your own voice, recorded on our voice mail system. This is your big chance for 15 seconds of fame. Be immortalized along with your work.]

In addition we want your opinions (uploaded to our HOST), your phone calls (recorded via voice mail for our "Letters" section) and your feedback in general.

All submissions should be prepared in accordance with the Submission Guidelines (see GUIDE.WRI). If those guidelines appear to be inadequate for your idea, please contact us via upload, voice mail, phone, or fax (the numbers are listed below).

All contributions must be accompanied by an original, signed copy of the release form (see SUBMIT.WRI).
