Out of MS-DOS file handles. (Error 3042)

{ewc HLP95EN.dll, DYNALINK, "See Also":"damsgNoMoreFilesC "}　　　　{ewc HLP95EN.dll, DYNALINK, "Specifics":"damsgNoMoreFilesS "}

Either close some files, close other applications, or increase the number of available MS-DOS file handles.

▶ To increase the number of file handles

1 Edit your CONFIG.sys file using Microsoft Windows Notepad or another text editor. The CONFIG.sys file is usually located in the root directory of your boot drive. If you don't have a CONFIG.sys file on your system, you must create one that contains the line listed in step 2.

2 Look for the line that reads FILES = x, where x is some number. Increase the number specified by the FILES command; the exact number of handles you enter depends on the applications you run and the number of files that are open at any given time. If other applications open multiple files, you may need to specify more file handles.

   As you increase the number of file handles, remember that each handle consumes more memory. For additional information, refer to your operating system manual.

3 Exit Microsoft Windows.

4 Reboot your system, and then try the operation again.

The Microsoft Jet database engine does not recognize <name> as a valid field name or expression. (Error 3070)

{ewc HLP95EN.dll, DYNALINK, "See Also":"damsgQueryUnboundRefC "}   {ewc HLP95EN.dll, DYNALINK, "Specifics":"damsgQueryUnboundRefS "}

The specified name isn't a recognized field name or a valid expression. In a query, this error can occur if you enter a name that improperly refers to a database, table, or field.

Possible causes with Microsoft Access:

- You have a parameter in a crosstab query or in a query that a crosstab query or chart is based on, and the parameter data type isn't explicitly specified in the Query Parameters dialog box. To solve the problem:
  - In the query that contains the parameter, specify the parameter and its data type in the Query Parameters dialog box. And;
  - Set the ColumnHeadings property for the query that contains the parameter.
- In any type of query, you've improperly referred to a database, table, or field. For example, this error can occur if you refer to a field named Salary in an expression, but you misspell the field name, such as `[Sallary]*1.1`.

This expression is typed incorrectly, or it is too complex to be evaluated. For example, a numeric expression may contain too many complicated elements. Try simplifying the expression by assigning parts of the expression to variables. (Error 3071)

{ewc HLP95EN.dll, DYNALINK, "See Also":"damsgQueryExprEvaluationC "}   {ewc HLP95EN.dll, DYNALINK, "Specifics":"damsgQueryExprEvaluationS "}

Possible causes:

- You typed an expression that has invalid syntax. For example, an operand or operator may be missing, you may have typed an invalid character or comma, or you may have typed text without enclosing it with quotation marks ("). Check the expression to make sure you typed it correctly.

- You typed an expression that is too complex. For example, a numeric expression may contain too many complicated elements. Try simplifying the expression by assigning some parts to variables.

Operation must use an updatable query. (Error 3073)

{ewc HLP95EN.dll, DYNALINK, "See Also":"damsgQueryNotUpdatableC "}   {ewc HLP95EN.dll, DYNALINK, "Specifics":"damsgQueryNotUpdatableS "}

You tried to run, open, or modify a query that isn't updatable.

Possible causes:

- You attempted to run a query that tried to update a field that can't be updated. For example, you may have created the query in such a way that you tried to update a field on the one side of a one-to-many relationship.

- You tried to use the obsolete OpenQueryDef method on a query that is in a database opened for read-only access.

  The database is read-only for one of the following reasons:

  - You used the OpenDatabase method or the Visual Basic Data control, and opened the database for read-only access.

  - The database file has been defined as read-only in your network operating system.

  - In a network environment, you don't have write privileges for the database file.

  Close the database, resolve the read-only condition, and then reopen it for read/write access.

- You don't have permission to make changes to the query. To change your permission assignments, see your system administrator or the query's creator.

The expression you entered isn't valid for the reason indicated in the message. Make sure you entered field names and punctuation correctly, and then try the operation again.

The Microsoft Jet database engine cannot find the input table or query <name>. Make sure it exists and that its name is spelled correctly. (Error 3078)

{ewc HLP95EN.dll, DYNALINK, "See Also":"damsgInputTableNotFoundC "}   {ewc HLP95EN.dll, DYNALINK, "Specifics":"damsgInputTableNotFoundS "}

Possible causes:

- The specified table or query doesn't exist.
- You misspelled the table or query name. Check for missing underscores (_) or other punctuation, and make sure you didn't enter leading spaces.

The specified field <field> could refer to more than one table listed in the FROM clause of your SQL statement. (Error 3079)

{ewc HLP95EN.DLL,DYNALINK,"See Also":"damsgQueryAmbigRefC"}   {ewc HLP95EN.DLL,DYNALINK,"Specifics":"damsgQueryAmbigRefS"}

The specified field reference could refer to more than one table listed in the FROM clause of your SQL statement. In the following example, the OrderID field exists in both the Orders and Order Details tables:

SELECT OrderID
FROM Orders, [Order Details];

Because the statement doesn't specify which table OrderID belongs to, it produces this error. To complete this operation, fully qualify the field reference by adding a table name. For example:

SELECT Orders.OrderID
FROM Orders, [Order Details];

Joined table <name> not listed in FROM clause. (Error 3080)

{ewc HLP95EN.dll, DYNALINK, "See Also":"damsgJoinTableNotInputC "}   {ewc HLP95EN.dll, DYNALINK, "Specifics":"damsgJoinTableNotInputS "}

Add the specified table name to the FROM clause of the query, and then try the operation again.

Can't join more than one table with the same name <name>. (Error 3081)

You tried to join two or more tables that have the same name. Select different tables, rename one of the tables, or use an alias, and then try the operation again. If you are trying to join a table to itself, use a table alias to change the second reference to the table.

JOIN operation <operation> refers to a field that isn't in one of the joined tables. (Error 3082)

You tried to execute an SQL statement that contains an invalid join. This error occurs when you try to create a join on a field that isn't in one of the joined tables. The following example produces this error.

SELECT Authors.FirstName, Titles.ISBN
FROM Authors, Titles, AuthorTitles,
Authors INNER JOIN Titles ON Authors.ID = AuthorTitles.ISBN;

The error occurs because the join involves the Authors and Titles tables, but the joined fields are in the Authors and AuthorTitles tables.

You entered an SQL expression that includes a Function procedure name that can't be recognized. Make sure the function exists, that it can be used in SQL expressions, or check the expression to make sure you entered the name correctly.

Couldn't delete from specified tables. (Error 3086)

{ewc HLP95EN.dll, DYNALINK, "See Also":"damsgQueryCannotDeleteC "}   {ewc HLP95EN.dll, DYNALINK, "Specifics":"damsgQueryCannotDeleteS "}

You tried to delete data from one or more tables, but the deletion couldn't be completed.

Possible causes:

- You don't have permission to modify the table. To change your permissions assignments, see your system administrator or the table's creator.
- The database was opened for read-only access. The database is read-only for one of these reasons:
  - You used the OpenDatabase method and opened the database for read-only access.
  - The database file is defined as read-only in the database server operating system or by your network.
  - In a network environment, you don't have write privileges for the database file.
  - In Visual Basic, you used the Data control and set the ReadOnly property to True.

To delete the data, close the database, resolve the read-only condition, and then reopen the file for read/write access.

Couldn't find installable ISAM. (Error 3170)

{ewc HLP95EN.dll, DYNALINK, "See Also":"damsgInstallIsamNotFoundC "}   {ewc HLP95EN.dll, DYNALINK, "Specifics":"damsgInstallIsamNotFoundS "}

The DLL for an installable ISAM file couldn't be found. This file is required for linking external tables (other than ODBC or Microsoft Jet database tables). The locations for all ISAM drivers are maintained in the Windows Registry. These entries are created automatically when you install your application. If you change the location of these drivers, you need to correct your application Setup program to reflect this change and make the correct entries in the Registry.

Possible causes:

- An entry in the Registry isn't valid. For example, this error occurs if you're using a Paradox external database, and the Paradox entry points to a nonexistent directory or driver. Exit the application, correct the Windows Registry, and try the operation again.
- One of the entries in the Registry points to a network drive and that network isn't connected. Make sure the network is available, and then try the operation again.

This error occurs if you're using the Paradox external database, and the ParadoxNetPath value points to a nonexistent directory. Exit the application, correct the invalid entry, and try the operation again.

- The ParadoxNetPath Registry value points to a network drive, and you aren't connected to that network drive. Make sure the network drive is available, and then try the operation again.

{ewc HLP95EN.dll, DYNALINK, "See Also":"damsgTempDiskFullC "}   {ewc HLP95EN.dll, DYNALINK, "Specifics":"damsgTempDiskFullS "}

You tried to perform an operation that requires more space than is available on the temporary disk. Your temporary disk location is based on the TEMP DOS environment variable, which was set when your system started.

For example, you may be trying to create a query that creates temporary files larger than the temporary disk. Reduce the size of the temporary files by accessing smaller amounts of data at one time or increase the size of the temporary disk.

You can increase the amount of available temporary disk space in several ways:

- Select fewer records. Dynaset-type, forward-only – type, and snapshot-type Recordset objects record keys and data to the temporary disk.
- Select a different drive for your temporary disk.
- If the temporary disk is a RAM disk, increase the amount of available RAM and the space allocated to the RAM disk, or move it to a fixed disk.
- Free some space by deleting data or by removing unneeded tables, queries, forms, macros, and modules from your database.
- Free some space by compressing deleted records out of your database.
- If you still need additional space, consider removing other unused files from your disk.

Couldn't build key. (Error 3250)

When building a primary index, the Microsoft Jet database engine couldn't build a primary key. Make sure the key fields are named properly and that there are no duplicate records based on this key.

This error can occur when you use the Seek method and pass it a value for a field that is not part of the index. For example, suppose you want to use the Seek method on a Recordset whose current index uses the LastName field of the underlying table, and you write it this way:

rstEmployees.Seek "=", "Smith", "Joe"

Microsoft Jet will try to construct a primary key from two fields, but because one field is indexed, the attempt will fail and this error results.

Operation is not supported for this type of object. (Error 3251)

{ewc HLP95EN.dll, DYNALINK, "See Also":"damsgFeatureNotAvailableC "}   {ewc HLP95EN.dll, DYNALINK, "Specifics":"damsgFeatureNotAvailableS "}

You were attempting to execute a method or assign a value to a property that is usually valid for the object, but isn't supported in this specific instance. For example, the Edit method is generally valid for Recordset objects, but not for a snapshot-type Recordset. This error could also occur in cases where the operation isn't permitted due to the type or status of the object − as when trying to use the MovePrevious method on a forward-only – type Recordset. Some operations are also not supported, depending on if you are accessing a Microsoft Jet or an ODBC data source.

Index file not found. (Error 3256)

{ewc HLP95EN.dll, DYNALINK, "See Also":"damsgINFIndexNotFoundC "}   {ewc HLP95EN.dll, DYNALINK, "Specifics":"damsgINFIndexNotFoundS "}

You tried to access a dBASE table, but one of the indexes listed in the table's associated .inf file couldn't be found. The index may have been renamed, moved, or deleted. Either relink the table, or use Microsoft Windows Notepad or another text editor to update the .inf file.

Syntax error in WITH OWNERACCESS OPTION declaration. (Error 3257)

{ewc HLP95EN.dll, DYNALINK, "See Also":"damsgSQLOwnerAccessSyntaxC "}   {ewc HLP95EN.dll, DYNALINK, "Specifics":"damsgSQLOwnerAccessSyntaxS "}

Possible causes:

- The WITH OWNERACCESS OPTION declaration is incomplete or includes a space between OWNER and ACCESS.
- The declaration appears in an unexpected and disallowed position in the SQL statement. For example:

SELECT * WITH OWNERACCESS OPTION FROM [My Table];

The WITH OWNERACCESS OPTION declaration should appear at the end of the SQL statement, usually after the ORDER BY clause, if present:

SELECT * FROM [My Table] WITH OWNERACCESS OPTION;

The SQL statement couldn't be executed because it contains ambiguous outer joins. To force one of the joins to be performed first, create a separate query that performs the first join and then include that query in your SQL statement. (Error 3258)

{ewc HLP95EN.dll, DYNALINK, "See Also":"damsgQueryAmbiguousJoinsC "}   {ewc HLP95EN.dll, DYNALINK, "Specifics":"damsgQueryAmbiguousJoinsS "}

You tried to execute an SQL statement that contains multiple joins; the results of the query can differ depending on the order in which the joins are performed. For example, this error can occur if you execute the following SQL statement:

SELECT * FROM Customers, Orders, [Order Details],
Customers LEFT JOIN Orders
ON Customers.CustomerID = Orders.CustomerID,
Orders INNER JOIN [Order Details]
ON Orders.OrderID = [Order Details].OrderID;

Executing this statement produces an error because the order of the joins is ambiguous. To force one of the joins to be performed first, create a separate query that performs the first join and then include that query in your SQL statement. The following queries illustrate how you might construct the preceding query so that the INNER JOIN operation is performed before the LEFT JOIN and RIGHT JOIN operation:

Query1

SELECT * FROM Orders, [Order Details],
Orders INNER JOIN [Order Details]
ON Orders. OrderID = [Order Details].OrderID;

Query2

SELECT * FROM Customers, Query1,
Customers LEFT JOIN Query1
ON Customers.CustomerID = Orders.CustomerID;

The number of columns in the two selected tables or queries of a union query don't match. (Error 3307)

The two tables or queries joined by the UNION operation must generate the same number of columns. Remove columns from the SELECT statement that has too many columns or include more columns in the SELECT statement that has too few.

Note   You can include constants instead of columns in the SELECT statement that has too few columns. For example, the following union query generates three columns from the first SELECT statement but one column and two constants in the second SELECT statement. The query returns all countries in the Employees and Regions tables. From the Employees table, the query also returns the first and last name of an employee. If the country value is from the Regions table, however, the query returns Null in the First Name and Last Name columns.

Valid settings are:

- Require − INDEX.ddf file is required in the database directory, in addition to FILE.ddf and FIELD.ddf.
- Maintain − Updates the INDEX.ddf file if it exists, but doesn't generate an error if it doesn't.
- Ignore − Makes no attempt to update the INDEX.ddf file, regardless of whether or not it exists.

One or more of the XTRPATH, XTRENV, and XTRPINDEX settings in the Windows Registry is invalid.

Possible causes and solutions:

- XTRPATH is the directory search path for locating data files. The format for this entry is:

  XTRPATH=dir1;dir2;dir2

  where dir1, dir2, and dir3 are full directory paths (for example, XTRPATH=C:\DATA;D:\FILES;E:\DATA).

- XTRENV is the directory and filename for the Xtrieve environment file (for example, XTRENV=C:\XTRV\XTRIEVE.env).

- XTRPINDX is a pointer to the directory in which to create new Xtrieve tables, expressed as a numeric value corresponding to a directory in XTRPATH, with the first directory having an XTRPINDX of 1, the second having an XTRPINDX of 2, and so on. In the XTRPATH shown previously , an XTRPINDX value of 2 indicates create new Xtrieve tables in the directory D:\FILES.

This member of the replica set has been logically removed from the set and is no longer available. (Error 3569)

The member of the replica set you are attempting to use has been removed because either it has not been synchronized within the required number of days (retention period) or it has been synchronized with a second Design Master. The member should be deleted from your computer.

If there is data in the member that has not been synchronized with any other member in the replica set, manually enter that data in another member. You can determine which records have unsynchronized data by examining the s_Generation field in each table. A value of 0 in the s_Generation field indicates the record is an inserted or updated and has not been synchronized with another replica in the set. To view the s_Generation field, open Microsoft Access, go to the Tools menu, click Options, select the View tab, and then select the System Objects check box.

If the member is the Design Master, compare the structure of the replica with another replica in the set to determine whether any design changes have not been synchronized.

You have entered an invalid expression in a Boolean filter used to determine which records to use in a partial replica. The replica filter can take the following values:

Value	Description
A string	A criteria that a record must satisfy in order to appear in the replicated table. The string is similar to an SQL WHERE clause, but you cannot specify subqueries, aggregate functions (such as Count), or user defined functions within the criteria.
True	Replicate all records.
False	(Default) Don't replicate any records.
