Some images are comprised of layers and some printing devices cannot handle such images and will cause the job to abort during printing.