The best auto-mercenary money can buy, Antonio Malochio is a Vietnam vet who did three consecutive tours of duty. This guy was into some heavy shit deep in the jungles of Cambodia, where he supposedly had dealings with Pol Pot, leader of the Khmer Rouge. Since the war, he's returned to his business as a furniture importer/exporter... but it all seems to be a front. Based on loose accounts, Malochio's been dealing with some "businessmen" in the Middle East who have been "funding" him. And now he's recruited every freelance auto-mercenary in the American Southwest. He's building an army... and something big is going down.

That's his name, Groove Champion—son of Nick and Tammy Champion. Nick, a fourtime winner at Daytona, and Tammy, a former Miss America. Groove has spent his fair share of time on the track but his racing career has been stalled by his sister Jade, who consistently qualifies better than he. But now the murder of Jade has thrust Groove into the world of auto-vigilantism, where he must quickly learn the tricks of the trade in order to avenge her death and save America. Note:

Sister to Groove and partner to Taurus, Jade is whip-quick, hot like a lick of flame and an ace behind the wheel. She's Daisy Duke, Mario Andretti and a Molotov Cocktail rolled into one. Jade has had a secret life as an auto-vigilante for some time. Her family never knew...

Skeeter is different. He has no known family and people have been taking advantage of him all his life. He's probably wanted by the law for crimes he doesn't even know he committed. Eventually got a job on the one of the pit crews for Champion Motors, then left with Jade when she decided it was time to join the fight. One thing can be said— Skeeter is the best damn mechanic around and can fix anything. He'll follow you and Taurus in his van and cannibalize the vehicles you destroy. Then when the action slows down, he'll hook up with you and do any salvage work you want done. The weird thing about Skeeter is that he often sees things more clearly than anyone ever could—he can say some pretty dark shit. A word of advice—watch out when he drives, he seems to be narcoleptic. Note:

Taurus is not his name, it's what people call him. He's a seasoned auto-vigilante who was Jade's partner. Originally from New England, where he was a poet, his wife and daugher were killed by criminals—don't ever bring it up with him, though. He came to the desert to clear his head and never left. Instead he figured it was time to start cleaning up society his way. After awhile hooked up with Jade and have been driving together ever since. And now he must help Groove in his quest for revenge. Taurus drives a '66 Jefferson Sovereign with a bull's skull on the hood. He calls it "Eloise." @*%# with Taurus and you'll get the horns.
