

SPACE QUEST 6 INTERACTIVE DEMO

Welcome to another in the series of Roger Wilco's bumbling but good hearted adventures. We hope you'll find this demo entertaining and that, most importantly of course, it will make you want to shell out those hard-earned buckazoids for the full blown game. (Ken Williams made me say that part. You know how bosses are!)

There are plenty of puzzles to solve here, but please note that they are an entirely different set of puzzles from what you will find in the real game so, by playing this all the way through, you will not be shorted on play value when you get the entire game. Hopefully, it will give you some bonus enjoyment. That indeed is our aim. (Along with wanting to sell a whole lot of these suckers!)

Enjoy!

Note for Windows '95 users

If you are running this demo in Windows '95 in the video resolution of 640 by 480 the Taskbar will eclipse part of the game screen unless you set the properties in the Windows Taskbar so that it is not always on top. In order to do this you will need to click on the START button on the Taskbar, then choose SETTINGS, then choose TASKBAR. Make sure that there is not a check mark next to the item "Always on top." In this way, the Taskbar will be hidden behind the game screen.
