

The PowerClip feature gives you the ability to place an object inside the borders of another object. The two objects form a relationship in which one object is the container object and the other is the contents object. The container object shows only the part of the contents object that fits inside its borders.

In this Tutor, you'll learn how to use the PowerClip feature to place a photo bitmap inside the borders of a shape.