When you create one-point perspective, an X appears in the Drawing Window. This shows the vanishing point, which is the point to which the object appears to recede. You can drag the vanishing point to adjust the perspective effect.

1. Drag the X toward or away from the object.

   If you drag the X past the point at which any two handles meet, the grid box reverts to its original position.