

When printing in color, you need to decide which type of color to use. There are two basic types of colors: process color and spot color.

Consult with your service bureau representatives to determine the color type that meets your requirements. Once you've determined the appropriate color type, it is important to make sure that the colors in your document are all of that type.