Help is available for each item in this group. Click ? at the top of the dialog box, and then click the item you want information about.

Displays the start time of the multimedia file. You can specify when the multimedia file starts by typing the time in the box.

Displays the end time of the multimedia file. You can specify when the multimedia file stops by typing the time in the box.

Specifies whether you want the multimedia file to play a specific number of times or automatically repeat.

Specifies whether you want the multimedia file to automatically rewind when it has finished playing.

Adjusts the balance of your computer's speakers and the volume of the multimedia file. Drag the top slider from left to right   to adjust the balance and drag the bottom slider up and down to adjust the volume.

Lists the window sizes from which you can choose. Note that video clips are designed to run optimally at their original size. If you change the size, your video clips might not play smoothly and might appear grainy.

Enlarges a video clip to the full size of your screen. Note that video clips run optimally at their original size. Video clips that you run in a full screen might not run optimally, but they will run better than in a maximized window.

Specifies whether to make the display panel visible when viewing a multimedia file.

Specifies whether to display position controls when viewing a multimedia file. Position controls enable you to specify an exact start or end point for the multimedia file.

Specifies whether to display selection controls when viewing a multimedia file. Selection controls enable you to specify where your multimedia file begins and ends.

Specifies whether to display the slider control when viewing multimedia files. You can drag the slider to start or stop the multimedia file at a specific point.

Modifies your display panel to the specified colors. To change the foreground or background color, click the color button.

Displays the current filters available to view your multimedia files.

Click this to display properties for an existing filter.

Specifies whether to display controls when you view a multimedia file.