

PUTTING POINTS ON THE BOARD

It seems that when some teams play each other, the scoreboard can't keep up and the points keep piling up. Take the Bengals-Titans or Jets-Dolphins series, for example. It's like a high school rivalry, says former Dolphins safety Brian Walker. It's like that neighborhood Turkey Bowl game. When the Bengals and Titans meet, they average 49.9 points per game, ranking first among the top five active series in most average points scored (last 20 years). The Dolphins-Jets series is second at 49.6 points per game.

Series	Points
Cincinnati-Tennessee	49.9
Miami-N.Y. Jets	49.6
Minnesota-San Francisco	48.7
Cincinnati-San Diego	48.1
