1.3   User Check v1.4 by Glen Martin of GREMLiNS BBS

              \textdegree{}\textdegree{}
               _____  _                    _
  / _  \| |__  ___ _  _| |_

What User Check does is  ask the users a  few questions  after 5 or  more calls to the BBS which they were asked when they first logged in as a new user, assuming you  have new user questions  when a user  logs in for the first time. This is to check if the user is for real, by checking the new user questionnaire  answers (answered when they first logged on)  against the answers  they enter in this door, User Check.  If the answers are the same,  then you can  more or less assume the user is for real, but if the answers do not match, then they possibly  are a fake user or stupid (or a PC user) and in turn you can delete them from ya BBS. Oh what joy!

This is a small update from Version 1.0 of User Check ('97).

1.4   User Check v1.4 by Glen Martin of GREMLiNS BBS

              \textdegree{}\textdegree{}
               _____       _        _ _
  |_   _|_ _  __| |_ ___ _| | | |
   |   || ' \(_-< _/ _` | | | |
  |_____|_||_/__/____,_|_|_|_|            (c) GREMLiNS MAXsWARE

Firstly (if you already haven't) create a new directory called "gremlins" in your doors directory. Assign "gremlins" to your doors path in the user startup sequence, eg: "assign gremlins: doors:gremlins" assuming you also have the doors path assigned.

Move the "UserCheck" and "Fukwits" directories into the "gremlins" dir.

User Check is run in "introdoor.text" or whereever and only is run if the user has made 5 or more calls to the BBS.  The door skips if user has already answered the questions. A logfile is created in your "bbs:logfiles" directory  who entered the door.  Before you even use the door, you  must have also installed my other door  called "Fukwits" (included in archive, read the docs) as if the user fucks up answering the first few questions, they are then put in the "Fukwits.list" automatically and the door checks this, and  if the user is in it,  they are kicked off  the BBS, how nice.

User Check skips as a local login.

Need some help, have probs or want to send a msg then contact me.
